DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 12-22,24-27,30,31,34 and 35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ellis 5035476 in view of Gamble 5681987.

These claims stand rejected as discussed previously. Note that the focus of the light source may be considered as another "reference point" with which the light source is aligned.

3. Claims 1-11,23,28,29,32 and 33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ellis in view of Gamble and LoBianco 5214492.

These claims stand rejected as discussed previously. Note that the focus of the light source may be considered as another "reference point" with which the light source is aligned.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed 1/27/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant has argued that the primary reference to Ellis teaches away from defining or using reference points to align the light source since he teaches using a small number of components to address the problem of alignment.

However, the fact that Ellis teaches using a relatively smaller number of components so that alignment is easier is not seen as teaching away from using an adjustable light source as disclosed by Gamble. Each of Ellis' components still must be aligned for the device to function properly. The use of an adjustable light source would clearly have advantages over a light source which is not adjustable, one such advantage obviously being the ability to align the source with the rest of the optical components.

Regarding applicant's remarks that none of the prior art teaches using reference points (or planes), it should be noted that the components of the references do not have to be labeled as a "reference point" to function as one. As the light source of Ellis in view of Gamble will be aligned with respect to the components in the system, said light source will also be aligned with definable reference points located on the optical path.

Since the references teach a detection stop, a focus of the light source, an illumination stop, etc., the adjustable light source of Ellis in view of Gamble will necessarily be aligned with respect to these "reference points."

Concerning applicant's remarks that the examiner has not demonstrated a reasonable expectation of success in combining the references, it should be noted that an adjustable light source still functions as a light source. Thus, there is no reason to believe that making Ellis' light source adjustable would render the system inoperable.

Conclusion

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
